

Austine Gasnier is the Programme and Lead Research Associate of the Growing Inclusive Markets (GIM) initiative, led by the Private Sector Division of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in New York. Growing Inclusive Markets is a new UNDP-led multi-stakeholder research and advocacy platform to facilitate the engagement of all actors for more inclusive business models so that the pursuits of wealth creation and human progress can work to mutual advantage. As member of the core team since January 2007, Austine participated in the development of the first 50 GIM case studies and the first global Report, “Creating Value for All: Strategies for Doing Business with the Poor”, published in July 2008 and launched in over 36 countries to date all over the world. Before joining the UNDP Private Sector Division, she worked with the French Development Agency in Paris. A native of France, Austine holds a Masters degree in Political Science from Sciences Po Bordeaux.
